SEMINAR SPEAKERS

Robert Sabuda

A New York Times best-selling children's book creator, leading children's pop-up book artist, and paper engineer, Robert Sabuda began his career after graduating Summa Cum Laude from the Pratt Institute in New York City. His interest in children's book illustration began with an internship at Dial Books for Young Readers. Sabuda appears regularly on the television programs The Today Show, Good Morning America, and Martha Stewart where he shares his enthusiasm for creativity, children's book art and literature. He'll give a brief history of pop-up and movable books, discuss how he creates his work, plus lead a pop-up workshop.

Best Books for Young Readers

María Pérez-Stable has evaluated literature for children in grade K-9 since the late 1980s, resulting in two books, numerous journal articles, and workshops for teachers and librarians. Elizabeth Amidon taught children's literature for more than 20 years. An expert in the field, her most recent research interests include international children's literature. Their visual presentation will review the best books for youth in the past year. Pérez-Stable is professor, University Libraries, and Amidon is master faculty specialist emerita, English Department, Western Michigan University.

Book Arts with Children

Jeff Abshear, founder and director of Kalamazoo Book Arts Center, was a Fulbright Research Scholar in Venice, Italy, where he studied the history of Italian papermaking, printing, and bookbinding at the Accademia di Belle Arti. He has taught book arts to children each summer in Sardinia, Italy, and through workshops in the Kalamazoo Public Schools and at Interlochen Center for the Arts. As an adjunct professor at WMU's Frostic School of Art and Lee Honors College, he has taught courses in book arts and printmaking and conducted a study abroad course, Book Arts in Venice, in which a group of students worked at Tipoteca Italiana Fondazione, a letterpress museum, to produce a hand-printed book.
